Legendary German Steel Blades

When it matters, would you prefer German steel or Chinese steel?™ PUMA® SGB® knives are made with German steel blades. Each blade is Rockwell tested to ensure hardness between 55 and 57 and bears the dot of a Rockwell proofmark. These knives deliver the performance of superior grade 1.4116 German Cutlery steel at popular price points. If you are looking for a knife that delivers legendary German steel performance, look no further. PUMA® SGB® German steel Knives use the exact same steel produced in Solingen, Germany as the traditional PUMA® German knives, but the blades are assembled into complete knives in Asia. The same attention to detail is taken with the materials, fitting, and finishing, so you can now carry a real PUMA® German steel knife at a new popular price.

PUMA® SGB® GERMAN STEEL PROVES IT

Lots of companies talk about the quality of their steel. PUMA® SGB® German Steel proves it. We proof every single German steel PUMA® SGB® knife for hardness so that we know it will get razor sharp, hold a great edge, and still be easy to sharpen. If you examine the right hand side of your knife blade, you will see a small indented dot on the blade made by a diamond-pointed needle. This small dot is the “proof mark” from a Rockwell hardness tester and is your personal assurance that your knife will deliver the PUMA® quality promise. If it does not pass, it does not ship.

New in 2017, COMMANDO STAG

Created and Trademarked by PUMA® Knife Company USA owner, Bob Carpenter in 2016. This synthetic stag was moulded from a genuine elk antler harvested in a place called the Commando Bowl located in central Colorado. We have sought to set a new standard for synthetic stag handles and we think you will agree we have really raised the bar. The Commando Stag has an authentic texture and color perfectly matching an elk that once roamed the High Country of Colorado. Made with Delrin® POM (Polyoxymethylene) material; this scale type is extremely durable and versatile being resistant to contracting and swelling due to extreme temperatures. When you see the embedded HC® you know that's our Commando stag!

As the name suggests the Forever Knife is built to last. The thick (5mm!) 440 stainless steel, full tang blade is wrapped in the same durable co-mold design as the machetes. The knife comes with a ballistic nylon sheath and features a fire striker. The fire striker has its own pocket and snap attached to the front side of the knife sheath.

PUMA® Machetes

PUMA® machetes are designed to power through the work you do. Whether clearing brush and grass or building duck blinds, full tang PUMA® machetes have enough weight to carry through and cut. The 3mm thick 3CR14 stainless steel blade is hefty enough that less strokes will do more work than lighter machetes. The comolded grip is designed to be easy to hold on to and the D handle shape protects your hand. There is even an adjustable wrist strap for additional safety while swinging away.

The ballistic sheath has straps to hold the machete in place and a belt loop for convenient carry. Available in traditional Bush style or Kukri designs. Made in China

The Puma XP brand was established to produce Knives and Tools that may be too large or have "specific use" that would not be enhanced by using German Steel. An example would be the Puma XP Machetes. These are large tools with a "specific use" like hacking at heavy brush or foliage. To use a high quality 1.4116 cutlery steel would probably not be very prudent, nor a very attractive price point.
